Dear Dr. Streisand:

Thank you for the invitation to address the students in your medical science class on the topic of dermatology. As you know, this is my specialty; I am particularly interested in the topic of skin rashes and their causes and treatments.

I recognize that your students are beginning medical school students, so my presentation will focus on a very general talk about dermatology. I am enclosing a copy of a paper I presented at the AMA meeting in San Francisco last week that I think would be appropriate for your students. The audience at my AMA presentation was primarily first-year nursing students who were interested in a general background of the more common types of skin rashes.

Please send me a copy of your program with directions on how to reach your classroom on the day of my presentation. I look forward to meeting with your students.

Sincerely yours,

Angela Miller, M.D.

PS: Please let me know how many students you have in your class so I can prepare an adequate number of handouts for them.
